Safety

LP has demonstrated industry-leading commitment to safety, earning the prestigious "Safest Company" designation from the APA-The Engineered Wood Association 13 times in the past 17 years. This consistent recognition reflects LP's dedication to protecting its workforce and maintaining world-class safety standards across all operations.

Sustainability

At LP, sustainability is foundational to how we operate, innovate, and build for the future. We are committed to responsible forestry, ensuring that all our wood is sourced sustainably to protect forest ecosystems for generations to come. Our manufacturing processes are designed to minimize environmental impact, using renewable energy sources and striving for efficient, low-emission production. Most LP products are carbon-negative, meaning they store more carbon than they emit during their entire life cycle. By combining smart design with sustainable practices, we help customers build resilient structures while reducing their environmental footprint. ## Community Support

At LP, we believe building strong communities is just as important as building strong products. Our teams share their time and expertise in countless ways to support the places where we live and work. Through the LP Foundation, we've contributed over $23 million to nonprofits and public schools, focusing on affordable housing, environmental stewardship, and future workforce development. And when natural disasters strike, we step up with funding, product donations, and hands-on support to help communities recover.
